Another successful week at NIA Lusail. World Teaching Assistant Appreciation Day, Safer Internet Week, Literacy Week, Parents' Evening and more. A busy school calendar gives our children access to enormous opportunities and experiences.

Celebrating Our Wonderful Teaching Assistants

We proudly celebrated World Teaching Assistant Appreciation Day, taking time to recognise the outstanding contribution our Teaching Assistants make to school life every day. Colleagues, Parents and children showered our TA's with thoughtful messages, cards, and gifts throughout the day. The kindness and appreciation shown were truly heart-warming and greatly appreciated by our team. It was wonderful to see them receive such well-deserved recognition, and I know they felt incredibly valued by the generosity and gratitude of our school community. Thank you for helping us celebrate these remarkable members of staff.

Empowering Students

As part of Staying Safe Online Week, our School Council confidently led an interactive Online Safety Assembly for pupils across the school. Through an engaging presentation and fun quiz, they shared important messages about staying safe online while encouraging active participation from their peers. The assembly was both informative and enjoyable, showcasing the positive impact of student leadership and empowering pupils to learn from one another. Winners of the poster competition were also selected and awarded at the assembly.

Partnership with Parents

We were delighted to welcome parents into school for our Parents' Evening meetings. These valuable conversations provided an opportunity to celebrate pupils' achievements, discuss their progress, and strengthen the partnership between home and school. Working together is key to ensuring every child reaches their full potential, and it was wonderful to see such strong support for our pupils' learning and development..

Staff Achievement

Congratulations to our security guard Rizwan for successfully passing his higher level security training. This now entitles him to act as security for Embassies including the US Embassy.

Literacy Week

This week, our school community came together to celebrate Literacy Week, fostering a love of reading and learning across all year groups. A key highlight was the introduction of ERIC Time (Everyone Reading In Class), which has quickly become a favourite part of the school day. The Reading Baton has been hand delivered all week between EYFS, Primary and Secondary. Pupils have embraced the opportunity to immerse themselves in books, explore new stories, and develop their reading skills in a calm and enjoyable environment. Another memorable moment was seeing our Secondary students take on the role of reading buddies for Primary pupils. It was wonderful to witness older and younger students sharing stories, building confidence, and creating meaningful connections through reading. The excitement and engagement seen across the school have made Literacy Week a fantastic success and have reinforced the importance of reading for pleasure and lifelong learning.

P4C Initiative - HomeTalk

We are excited to launch P4C HomeTalk, an initiative designed to extend our Philosophy for Children (P4C) approach beyond the classroom and into the home. Through weekly discussions centred around our Virtue of the Week, pupils and families are encouraged to explore big questions, share ideas, and reflect together. The aim of P4C HomeTalk is to develop brighter thinkers by nurturing curiosity, critical thinking, communication, and empathy. This week's virtue is Courtesy, providing families with an opportunity to discuss what it means to show respect, consideration, and kindness in our daily interactions.
